Suggested Summer Reading List & Reading Log

Dear Parents,

Reading, like a sport, involves practice and skill. Real skill building occurs when children read for pleasure, when children read “just right” books, that is, books that are not too hard and not too easy, and when children can explore books about those topics that interest them. The more they practice with someone’s encouragement, suggestions and praise, the better and more confident readers they will become.

Summer reading helps children get excited about reading and attending school in the fall. Attached you will find a list of suggested books that are appropriate for your child to read, or for you to read to them. You or your child can record the books they have read on the log during the summer. Any books your child reads can be added to the log, not just the ones on this list. Your child is required to read at least 10 books. However, the more the better! I strongly recommend you join the summer reading program at your local library. When school begins next year, please return the reading log and math packet to me. Children who return the log will be presented with a Summer Reading Certificate of Participation. Attached, please find a list of recommended books and the reading log to be filled out and turned in.

Have a great summer and keep on reading!

Kind Regards,

*Some exciting reading activities your child can do include:

- Kids ages 10 and under can join Pottery Barn Kids’ Summer Reading Challenge online. If they finish any of the site’s reading lists, they can get a free book from the store.
- Elementary students can get a free book from Barnes and Noble’s “Imagination Destination” program when you download and finish an online reading journal.
- Your local public library should have a summer reading program for your child. I strongly encourage all children to participate in this type of program.
